

MONTHLY HEADS UP

Borealia was one of the names proposed for the new country "CADADA" at the time of Confederation. The menu draws inspiration from the historic foods of the natives, early settlers, and subsequent immigrant groups who arrived in the 18th and 19th centuries. It is derived from the Latin word for "northern," Thanks to our Member and host Diane Quinlan.

We will be dining in "Heritage Canada" no New Zealand Cumquats to-night. "We were inspired by the immigrants that built Canada and how they tweaked their recipes to work with the indigenous plants," says Wu.

Owners: Evelyn Wu and Wayne Morris. The pair met while working at Waterfront Wines in British Columbia. They married last year. Chefs: Morris, with sous chef Fabrizio DeCicco (previously of Bellwoods Brewery). The restaurant has received accolades from; The Toronto Star – and Toronto Life Magazine – "...Then Borealia won me over"
